Working Hard to Get It Right

Last January, when Caitlyn Jenner was still named Bruce, People at last confirmed that Jenner was transitioning from male to female and posted the news on People.com. With apologies to Kim Kardashian, it pretty much broke the Internet. Certainly, People was not the first to report on the transition—other outlets had been wildly speculating about her for months—but People's editors were, as always, careful and respectful in our coverage, and our confirmation became a key moment in Jenner's saga. Millions of curious users clicked on our story for one reason: If People said it was true, you knew it was true. Since then we have continued to follow Jenner in print and online, recently partnering with WhoSay to publish a series of editorials she is writing about the transgender community and issues it faces (her latest editorial, about appearing at the ESPY Awards, is covered in our Star Trax spread on Jenner in this issue). The trust we've gained with readers and the subjects we cover is just one reason People remains, by far, the most successful magazine in the world, with a market share higher than it's been in a decade, and a print and digital audience of 75 million. In the past year our website traffic has increased 62% to 44 million visitors each month (according to comScore), and we have nearly 20 million followers on social media. Recently Will Lee, our tireless digital editorial director, combined People.com and EW.com to form a network that's now No. 1 in the digital entertainment news category. Credit for this growth goes to a phenomenal team of writers, editors and producers who will put out 52 issues of People this year while simultaneously posting thousands of original, breaking-news stories on People.com, generating videos and contributing to our daily half-hour news program People Now. I say all this not to brag (well, not just brag) but to recognize an amazing team that makes this 41-year-old brand more vital than ever. I marvel at the writers and editors who constantly juggle the weekly demands of print and the minute-by-minute demands of the Internet. Even as this week's issue goes to press, senior editor Mary Margaret and her team are writing and editing the cover story on the split between Blake Shelton and Miranda Lambert, while also posting numerous stories about it on People.com. Our staff manages it all with speed, singular skills and a healthy competitive spirit but also with compassion for the people they cover and respect for our audience. They do it right by getting it right.

I was very sad reading about their split. It was like reading an obituary. For me, a casual observer, this couple represented a happy, stable family.

Judy Quaglia Windsor, Ont.

Your article both touched and broke my heart! They make a beautiful couple and always seemed so much in love and such wonderful parents. Of all of the couples in show business, I always thought they would make it. This breakup is a shame!

One week before the debut of her new reality show I Am Cait (see page 35), Caitlyn Jenner, 65, made her first official public appearance—in a Donatella Versace gown—to accept the Arthur Ashe Courage Award at the ESPYs. Her mom, Esther, and sister Pam were by her side.

"I wanted to feel good . . . I wanted to be myself," writes Jenner, reflecting on the night in the latest of a series of editorials that she's releasing in partnership with WhoSay. "The toughest part in the speech was my kids. It was hard to look over there and see all of my children." Although she called the evening "a wonderful moment," Jenner admits that it was difficult to watch herself in the taped broadcast. "While I felt like I looked great and that the gown looked fabulous, I still have a voice issue. It's not quite right compared to my feminine appearance." She continues, "I hope that people don't listen to the pitch of my voice but listen to what I have to say." According to a source close to the family, Jenner is "thriving" in her new environment. "She wants to change the world by bringing awareness and acceptance to these important issues," says the source.

THE DUGGARS

THEIR NEXT MOVES

BY MICHELLE TAUBER

WHEN MEREDITH GRACE Duggar was born on July 19, the famous family grew yet again—but there was a very different vibe in the family's hometown of Tontitown, Ark. No TLC cameras were on hand to capture the new arrival; instead, new dad Josh announced the news on Twitter, sharing a photo of his wife, Anna, and their daughter. “We are rejoicing with Josh and Anna,” grandparents

Michelle and Jim Bob said in a video posted to their family website. “That’s five grandkids and counting,” said Jim Bob. Added Michelle: “We love our babies!”

The news was a bright spot just three days after TLC announced the official cancellation of 19 Kids and Counting, the hit reality show that chronicled the evangelical Christian family for nine seasons. The decision came two months after a 2006 police report surfaced revealing that Josh, 27, had been accused of molesting five underage girls as a 14-year-old. Josh subsequently apologized; two of his sisters, Jill and Jessa, came forward as victims and said they had long ago forgiven their brother. Even as the network delayed an immediate decision about the show's future, the Duggars remained optimistic. "I think Jim Bob and Michelle honestly did expect people to just move on from this," says a source who has worked closely with the family. "Their thinking is, they put this behind them ages ago, so why wouldn't the rest of the world?"

“With God’s grace . . . Josh, our daughters and our entire family overcame a terrible situation,” Jim Bob and Michelle said on July 16.

The insider says that Jim Bob, 50, has decried the release of the documents as "a liberal media conspiracy to bring his family down, and he thinks the network should have shown more support." (The Duggar family declined to comment for this story; TLC declined to elaborate on their statement on the show's cancellation.) After two months of "near-constant" and "intense" conversations about the future of the show, the source says Jim Bob was not fond of one option being considered: a spinoff centered on Jill and Jessa. "He absolutely wanted to be back on TV and was never thrilled about the show suddenly shifting focus."

The network has announced plans for a special on survivors of sexual abuse, a topic that is "on message" for Jim Bob and Michelle, 48, says the source: "They're happy to show that this did not scar them permanently." As for any future series, the source points to the network's periodic specials on Kate Gosselin as a possible model. "The Duggars want to return to TV because they truly believe it was part of God's plan for them to spread the word about their faith," says the source. "They are heartbroken that they've now lost that platform."

INSIDE THE DUGGARS' CHANGING LIVES

JESSA & BEN SEEWALD

Expecting Their First

The family's most outspoken daughter, 22, and her husband, Ben, 20, are due to become parents on Nov. 1—their first wedding anniversary. "She is clearly the star in the family: beautiful, smart, strong-willed," says the insider. She is also fiercely loyal: "She may be slightly more free-spirited than your average Duggar, but she is firmly and centrally a part of the family, as is her husband."

JILL & DERICK DILLARD

On a Mission

The mom of nearly 4-month-old son Israel and her husband left on a mission trip to Central America in early July. "And with that, one half of any potential new show was gone," the source says of a spinoff featuring Jill, 24, and Jessa. Derick, 26, blogged that their son "is adjusting . . . faster than Jill and I" to the new surroundings. He's been the talk of the town.

JOSH & ANNA DUGGAR

Baby No. 4

The couple welcomed daughter Meredith Grace on July 19. After Josh resigned from his job at the Family Research Council following the scandal, the family left their home near Washington, D.C., and returned to Arkansas. In June he thanked his dad for helping him "through the hard times."

The baby-faced software salesman, 26, is a favorite to be the next Bachelor—and he's not opposed. "This is a great arena to meet somebody," he says. "The next Bachelor is very lucky. If the offer was on the table, I'd consider it!"

Ian Thomson

The Princeton grad, 28, who left the show after proclaiming he was too good for Bristowe, apologized—on his knees. "I forgive him," says Bristowe. "I really don't hold grudges. Everybody makes mistakes."

JJ Lane and Clint Arlis

The so-called "Brokeback Bachelors" finally set the record straight about their onscreen romance. "I am a straight man," Arlis, 27, said in response to rumors he had a romantic relationship with Lane, 32. "There was nothing going on. We were friends."

Jared Haibon

Bristowe left the 26-year-old restaurant manager in tears when she said goodbye, but Haibon has no hard feelings. "Kaitlyn and I had a wonderful connection, but it just wasn't as strong as the others."

The worst date I've ever been on was a blind date. The guy I got set up with was hitting on the waitress. I actually said, "I hope you will be very happy together." Then I got up and left.

KEVIN HART

I was probably 20 and I got a Pontiac Trans Am. I assumed girls liked guys who drive fast. She was screaming for me to slow down and I got in an accident. That was the first and last time I saw her.

CHARLOTTE MCKINNEY

My friend set me up with her boyfriend's best friend. The whole time he went on about himself and how rich he was. Flashy guys are the biggest turnoff, so I bailed.

RYAN SEACREST

I should ask them, because I'm probably always the worst date! I was having dinner with someone and she ate cheesecake with her hands. It was very strange.

CHAT WITH MY FAMOUS COUSIN...

JOSH CHARLES

Bestselling author A.J. Jacobs is building the biggest family tree ever—240 million so far!—and writing a book about his adventure. Each month he interviews one of his favorite cousins for People. This month: Josh Charles, starring in Netflix's Wet Hot American Summer: First Day of Camp and Showtime's Masters of Sex.

AJ: You are officially my relative. You're my aunt's first cousin three times removed's wife's second cousin's husband's first cousin four times removed's husband.

JC: Really? You're not making this up? Well, if we're family, I'm sure we're going to get mad at each other about something unimportant.

AJ: Maybe by the end of the interview. Now, I've researched your heritage, and you're a walking melting pot. You've got Jewish, Scottish, German, Russian and English ancestors.

JC: Yeah, I am most certainly a mutt.

AJ: Your grandfather on your mother's side was a bartender in Baltimore. Did you get to know your grandfather well?

JC: Yes, I did. He was a great guy. We called him Daddy Bill. He taught me how to play golf and bought me my first set of clubs, which I view as either a blessing or a curse, depending on the status of my game.

AJ: Best advice from one of your relatives?

JC: My

grandmother on my father's side, Libby, liked to say, "Let the butter melt." It was her way of saying, take a moment, calm down and think before you act.

AJ: I love that. Since you have some Scottish heritage, do you ever wear kilts or eat haggis?

JC: Haggis?

AJ: The Scottish food. It's a mix of sheep's stomach—

JC: I can stop you right there. Not for me. But I really enjoyed working with [Scotland native] Alan Cumming for five years. He's fantastic.

AJ: You do voice-overs for NFL films, so I figured out that you're distantly linked to Tom Brady.

JC: Get out of here, man! That's crazy talk to say that to a Ravens fan.

CARA DELEVINGNE PAPER GIRL

She has one of the most famous faces in the fashion world, but Cara Delevingne says the strut that has ruled catwalks around the globe is all an act. “They say I’m a supermodel—I’m not,” she says. “I’m just good at pretending to be.” Growing up in London, “I was never that interested in fashion,” she adds. “I was always far more fascinated with what was going on inside.”

Now she’s getting the chance to go beneath the surface as Margo, the enigmatic and elusive heroine of Paper Towns, the new drama based on the hit novel by YA master John Green (The Fault in Our Stars). In what way does she identify most with Margo? “She lives in the moment and seeks adventure,” says Delevingne, 22. “Probably the pranking as well!”

As for her decision to be open about her bisexuality, Delevingne says, “I haven’t made a concrete decision about anything. Every day I change, and I’m discovering new things about myself.”

Although she has a VIP group of friends (see sidebar), she insists her downtime is spent doing “the same as everyone else: watching TV, playing video games.” But with four other movies slated to open this year and a role in the 2016 DC Comics film Suicide Squad, she’s busy. “I love it. I would do anything to do what I do.” —PATRICK GOMEZ

“She learns from her mistakes,” Delevingne (with Nat Wolff in Paper Towns) says of her rebellious alter ego.

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING

Williams and Lemuel Beckles at a Horizons program in Newark last month.

Allison Williams

The Girls star, 27, helps keep kids engaged and learning over the summer

Having a good summer is something a lot of kids take for granted. You might go to camp or go on trips with your family. All of those things, even though we might not focus on the learning side, lead to a broadening vocabulary, a broadening world view. But for families that can’t afford fancy excursions, there’s something called the summer slide, and kids end up falling behind their peers. I’m an ambassador for an organization called Horizons, which helps kids keep up with their schoolwork. And it’s fun! It’s not camp, and it’s not summer school—it’s some sort of hybrid. I’m a third-generation Horizons supporter. It’s something my whole family and I work on together. And it doesn’t feel like “work” for a second.

No. 1 Southpaw

Jake Gyllenhaal pounds it out as a boxer at the end of his tether

MOVIE

DRAMA A meat grinder of a boxing film, Southpaw doles out wicked haymakers and a stinging emotional punch. The key is Gyllenhaal's turn as Billy Hope, a champ who loses just about all a man can lose, then is forced to pick up whatever pieces he can find. To do that, he'll need the help of trainer "Tick" Wills (an intense Forest Whitaker) and the trust of his kid Leila (Oona Laurence). Like the jabs director Antoine Fuqua aims at the screen, Southpaw isn't subtle. But Gyllenhaal's wrung-out performance is worth a ringside seat. (July 24, R)

The soul star sings of love, loss and everything that made her the woman she is

MUSIC

R&B It's been 15 years since the singer released her breakout debut, Who Is Jill Scott?—and she's proving wisdom comes with age on her fifth studio album. The soul vet pairs her octave-spanning vocals and husky vibrato with nuggets of insight on tracks like "Fool's Gold" (the midtempo kiss-off warns love can make you do stupid things) and the big-band-and-gospel-choir-backed "Coming to You," on which she preaches about forgetting the haters and following your heart.

The next step of the year's most celebrated personal journey—a reality show!

TV REALITY Having filled our lives with static hum—selfies, superstar marriages, garish Christmas cards, the word “momager”—the Kardashian empire has somehow become the red-hot center of an important teaching moment for the nation. The person formerly known as Bruce Jenner, Olympic athlete and ex-spouse to Kris, has made her debut as a woman named Caitlyn, and her arrival has made history. With several other reality shows focused on the transgender experience set to air—as well as Jeffrey Tambor’s much-lauded performance as a trans woman on Amazon’s Transparent, and Laverne Cox’s bravura work on Netflix’s Orange Is the New Black—Jenner’s program comes at a watershed moment. (The military is even considering lifting the ban on transgender personnel.) You might wonder if she doesn’t merit a platform weightier-sounding than I Am Cait on E!, the tin-gabled palace of the Kardashians. (The show was not screened by press time.) But would you really want to see her experience as a Ken Burns documentary? (E!, July 26, 8 p.m.)

Lana Del Rey, 'Honeymoon'

MUSIC

POP Per usual, Top 40's queen of melancholy plays up tortured-love lyrics (her latest bad boy has a "history of violence") with cinematic strings and an ethereal chorus. It's a funeral ballad in honor of yet another doomed relationship—but in the best way.

If you purchased Nexium (esomeprazole magnesium) or its generic equivalent for yourself or your family, the partial settlements of a class action lawsuit may affect your rights.

You may be affected by the partial settlements of a class action lawsuit claiming that AstraZeneca AB, Aktiebolaget Hassle, AstraZeneca LP, Ranbaxy Pharmaceuticals, Inc., Ranbaxy Inc., Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. (together, "Non-Settling Defendants"), Teva Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd., Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc. ("Teva"), Dr. Reddy's Laboratories, Ltd., and Dr. Reddy's Laboratories, Inc. ("DRL" and, together with Teva, "Settling Defendants") violated various state laws by delaying the availability of allegedly less expensive generic versions of Nexium. The lawsuit alleges Defendants' conduct caused certain consumers and third-party payors (collectively, "End-Payors") to pay too much for Nexium. All Defendants deny any wrongdoing. Settlements have been reached with Teva and DRL. The lawsuit will continue against the Non-Settling Defendants.

ARE YOU AFFECTED? As a consumer, you may be a member of the End-Payor Class on behalf of which the Settlements were reached if you purchased or paid for some or all of the purchase price for Nexium and/or its generic equivalent in AZ, CA, FL, IA, KS, MA, ME, MI, MN, MS, NE, NV, NM, NY, NC, ND, OR, RI, SD, TN, UT (while a resident or citizen of UT), VT, WI, WV, and/or District of Columbia from April 14, 2008 onward, in capsule form, for consumption by yourself or your family. If you are obligated to pay a tiered co-payment (i.e., a co-payment amount that differs between brand and generic prescriptions) or you are obligated to pay a percentage of the purchase price, you are in the Class. Certain third-party payors are also members of the Class.

YOU ARE NOT AN END-PAYOR CLASS MEMBER IF YOU: (a) have a "Cadillac Plan" "flat co-payment" as part of your insurance coverage, which means you must pay a flat co-payment amount for a prescription regardless of whether it is a brand or generic, and all of your purchases of Nexium or generic Nexium were made through this plan; (b) purchased Nexium or generic Nexium only directly from Defendants or only for resale purposes; (c) purchased or received Nexium or generic Nexium only through a Medicaid program; (d) are one of the Defendants or an officer, director, manager, employee, subsidiary, or affiliate of Defendants; (e) are the judge in this lawsuit or a member of the judge's immediate family; or (f) you previously excluded yourself from the End-Payor Class.

WHAT DO THE SETTLEMENTS PROVIDE? DRL agreed to withdraw certain motions, and agreed to provide witnesses, a certification, and a factual proffer for use in the trial involving the End-Payor Class, other plaintiffs, and the remaining Defendants. To settle this lawsuit involving the End-Payor Class and two other plaintiff groups (the Direct Purchaser Class and Individual Retailers), Teva has agreed to deposit a total of $24 million into a Settlement Fund, which will be used to pay: (1) costs and expenses incurred by counsel for all three plaintiff groups; (2) up to $2 million in costs and expenses incurred in continuing the lawsuit against the Non-Settling Defendants; (3) taxable costs and taxes payable on the Settlement Fund; (4) incentive awards to the named End-Payor and Direct Purchaser Class Plaintiffs; and (5) settlement administration and notice expenses. The remainder of the Settlement Fund, if any, will be allocated as follows: (a) $1 million to the End-Payor Class, which may be distributed as a cy pres (charitable) distribution if no further recoveries result in distributions to members of the End-Payor Class; (b) and 61% of the balance to the Direct Purchaser Class and 39% to the Individual Retailer Class.

YOUR RIGHTS & OPTIONS. You have the right to object to one or both Settlements and you (or your lawyer) may appear and speak in Court, but it is not required. The deadline to submit an objection or request to appear is August 10, 2015. Go to www.NexiumCase.com for details.

THE COURT'S FAIRNESS HEARING. The Court will hold a hearing in this case (In re: Nexium (Esomeprazole) Antitrust Litig., MDL No. 2409) at 2:00 p.m. Eastern Time on September 29, 2015 to consider whether to approve the Settlements and a request for the payment of up to $2,500,000 in costs and expenses incurred to date and $5,000 incentive awards to each of the ten named End-Payor Plaintiffs.

WANT MORE INFORMATION? Go to the website, call toll-free, or write to Nexium End-Payor Notice Administrator, P.O. Box 43229, Providence, RI 02940-3229, for more information, including more complete information regarding Class membership and rights.

Mary Kubica Pretty Baby

NOVEL Unrelenting rain sets the mood in this intriguing novel about a 16-year-old homeless girl, a baby and a Chicago mother who is trying to help them. The sense of danger intensifies as mysteries surrounding both the girl and her benefactor slowly emerge. It all builds to a stunning climax involving revelations you won't see coming.

Alexander McCall Smith The Novel Habits of Happiness

NOVEL Isabel Dalhousie, Edinburgh's favorite philosopher/sleuth, is back, this time helping a frantic mom whose son keeps talking about his previous life. Plot twists keep you reading (maybe the boy's claims aren't so crazy after all...), but it's Isabel's musings on duty and parenthood that linger.

Paula McLain Circling the Sun

NOVEL Famed aviator Beryl Markham is a novelist's dream. She grew up a motherless tomboy on a Kenyan farm, then became a pioneering horse trainer and the first woman to fly the Atlantic solo, east to west. A charismatic beauty, she cavorted with a racy crowd (including Isak Dinesen), leaving lovers and husbands in her wake. McLain (The Paris Wife) riffs on the facts, creating a wonderful portrait of a complex woman who lived—defiantly—on her own terms.

Their Sad SPLIT

The country music superstars announce the sudden end of their marriage, leaving fans heartbroken and wondering what went wrong

Miranda Lambert is no stranger to bringing country fans to tears. But when she performed her Grammy Award-winning hit “The House That Built Me”—which her husband of four years, Blake Shelton, originally suggested she record—at the Cheyenne Frontier Days in Wyoming on July 18, it was the singer herself who got choked up. “Last thing anybody wants to do is cry in front of 19,000 people,” she told the crowd before asking them to finish singing the ballad for her. As Lambert wiped her eyes and silently swayed to the music, the crowd had no idea that she and Shelton would be announcing their divorce two days later. “She just kept saying thank you and how much she loves us,” says concertgoer Bailee Hanson. “It really was upsetting.”

The former couple didn’t hold back any emotion on July 20 when they released a joint statement: “This is not the future we envisioned. And it is with heavy hearts that we move forward separately.” But friends say the union, which made Shelton and Lambert one of country music’s highest-profile (and most beloved) couples, was challenged from the start, both by tabloid scrutiny and by busy, often conflicting schedules. When they married in 2011, Shelton was juggling his music career with new fame as a coach on NBC’s hit singing competition The Voice, which kept him in Los Angeles for months at a time. Lambert, meanwhile, continued touring and recording (her most recent album, Platinum, just won a Grammy). With a pact

Love at First Sight

The two met while performing a duet of “You’re the Reason God Made Oklahoma” on a CMT special in 2005. “Every time I hear [that song], it’s like I instantly go back there,” Shelton said.

not to spend more than two weeks apart, the two made a concerted effort to keep the marriage intact. Backstage at the ACM Awards in April, Lambert admitted that wasn’t always easy. “It’s definitely a different way to live your life,” she said. “But our relationship started with us going in different ways, and we make it work.”

By June, however, things had started to unravel. A Lambert friend says she wanted time apart “to reflect” on the marriage. “She wanted to try and make it work, maybe have more of a separation,” the friend says. “But he said, ‘I’m filing.’” Yet a Shelton source insists he had no choice. “It came on very quickly,” the source says. “It was very clear that things weren’t going to work out. So he decided to end it. He still loves her very much.” Shelton filed for divorce at the beginning of July in Oklahoma. (The pair had a prenup in place, and the divorce was finalized quickly.)

wife Kaynette Gern in 2006) exchanged vows in a country-chic wedding in her native Texas in 2011. “They were very alike in so many ways,” says Kathy Best, Lambert’s former publicist, who also helped plan their nuptials. “Whether that was good or bad I don’t know.” With a mutual love of music and cocktails, they made their home on a ranch in Tishomingo, Okla., where Lambert mothered a brood of dogs, cats, chickens, goats and horses and Shelton could hunt and relax away from the limelight. “We’re both really country people,” Lambert told People in 2012. “We love the woods and shooting guns, and L.A. is pretty much the opposite of that.” But their demanding schedules began taking a toll. “You are being pulled apart. Literally,” she said two years later. “Blake’s person is pulling him that way, and my person is pulling me this way. You get to that point where you’re both saying, ‘Where is our time? We need us time.’”

Worse, their marriage struggled under a constant tabloid spotlight—including baby rumors (sources say starting a family did not play into the divorce) and allegations of infidelity, which both Lambert and Shelton always denied. “I can

ALL SMILES

The couple (with singer Ashley Monroe) made their last public appearance at the ACM Awards in April. “They seemed like they were both having a good time,” says an industry source. “There were no signs at all that there was trouble.”

Shelton hung the sign in Lambert's store, the Pink Pistol.

Downtown Tishomingo, population 3,068.

Small-Town Happiness

Shelton and Lambert made their home in tiny Tishomingo, Okla., in the hopes of keeping their marriage grounded. "We try to be as normal about our relationship as we can," Shelton said in 2012. Their neighbors there "are really proud of us, but they treat us like anybody else, which is awesome," said Lambert.

"My dogs are my children," Lambert told People in 2012.

Shelton spent his downtime farming and fishing.

Lambert's menagerie includes five ponies.

DIFFERENT PATHS

guarantee you he has been faithful to her,” says the Shelton source. “He hasn’t cheated ever, ever, ever. This has really shaken him.” A friend of Lambert’s says Shelton’s focus on being a celebrity became a point of contention in the marriage. “He liked it, which isn’t a negative thing, but it’s just polar opposite to what she wants,” the friend adds. “It was frustrating, and she didn’t want to be part of that machine.”

For his part Shelton has credited Lambert with making sure they found quality time together. “She literally has flown across the country to be with me for one night and will get up and go home the next morning. She’s done that many, many times, where I just won’t do it and say, ‘Oh, I’ll see you next week!’ I’m just a guy about it, I guess,” he said in 2012. “She’s always been the one to go through hell to make sure we spend time together.” Friends say that despite his work commitments, Shelton prided himself on trying to be a good guy. “Blake is just that incredibly loyal and dedicated husband. His whole world revolved around her,” says the Shelton source. “She was his priority. [He would say] ‘I need to do production by this date and this time so I can go spend time with Miranda.’ That was always the tenor of his world, and everyone respected that.”

In the end it wasn’t enough. Now back in L.A. for production of Season 9 of The Voice, Shelton has been keeping his emotions close to the vest. “No one suspected a thing,” says the source. “He was the guy who was engaged and making people smile, which is what he does.” But privately, the source says, he is “devastated.” As for Lambert? “She’s sad and taking it day by day,” adds the source close to her. “She’s doing the best she can.”

CHATTANOOGA SHOOTING RAMPAGE

TERROR IN TENNESSEE

After Mohammad Youssuf Abdulazez opens fire at 2 military facilities, investigators search for a motive that could have driven the 24-year-old to take 5 lives BY JEFF TRUESDELL

A TROUBLED PAST

Abdulazez's April 2015 arrest for DUI pushed him deeper into depression, says a family spokesman. "Everyone is in shock he did this," says a neighbor.

The first shots came at about 10:45 a.m. on a Thursday morning, fired from a car at a U.S. Army recruiting center in Chattanooga. Fred Wright, a salesman standing near the back door of a nearby auto parts store, heard the pops, then saw staff fleeing toward the brush. "Call 911, someone's shooting at us," yelled one of them. The shooter took off in his vehicle but less than 10 miles away took aim again, this time inside the Navy Operational Support Center and Marine Corps Reserve Center. He crashed his car into the gate and, wearing a body armor vest, advanced with his weapons on foot toward Marines who were conducting an inventory of equipment. Four were killed before the gunman was shot dead by a police sniper after a gun battle; a Navy man later died from his injuries. Citing the "unquestionable bravery" of the police "who certainly saved lives," Marine Corps Maj. Clark Carpenter, a Pentagon public affairs officer on the scene, says, "The fallen are part of a new legacy. All Marines should be proud of how this unit performed."

'Something went awry with this young man. The question is what, when and how?'

—CASE INVESTIGATOR

In the days after that July 16 attack, investigators, friends and relatives of 24-year-old shooter Mohammad YoussufAbdulazeez were still asking why. “The person who committed this horrible crime was not the son we knew and loved,” his family said in a statement. “For many years our son suffered from depression. It grieves us beyond belief to know that his pain found its expression in this heinous act of violence.”

With no clear link to Islamic extremism—a source tells People that after 9/11, Abdulazeez’s father, a soil engineer in the city’s public works department, was investigated by the FBI for sending money overseas but was cleared—a motive is unclear. “Mohammad was a normal kid,” says a neighbor whose son wrestled against him in high school in middle-class Hixson, Tenn., where Abdulazeez grew up in a two-story home on Colonial Way Circle. “He was polite; he never acted up.” That left police searching for clues in Abdulazeez’s recent travels to the Middle East (he was born in Kuwait), as well as in his blog posts, which revealed a devotion to Allah and included a complaint that life is “short and bitter.” A source close to the investigation tells People that Abdulazeez’s electronics, including his computer and cell phone, are being “looked at very closely.” His diary and interviews with his family reportedly point to the job he lost after a failed drug test in 2013 and the fact that he was thousands of dollars in debt as factors contributing to his escalating desperation. Says the source: “The investigation is far from over.”

Abdulazeez’s family confirms that he had issues with drugs and alcohol: Last April he was arrested for DUI after an officer noted a “white powdery substance” around his nostrils; he was due to face the charge in court on July 30. And although he received treatment for his depression, he was still struggling with it. “They do not know of anything else to explain it,” the spokesman said. “We understand there are many legitimate questions that need to be answered,” the family said. “Now is the time to reflect on the victims.”

THE FALLEN HEROES

After hearing the crash at the gate of the naval reserve center, Marine Staff Sgt. David Wyatt dialed 911 and, with Gunnery Sgt. Thomas Sullivan, hurried 18 others out of the building and over a high fence one by one. There, a head count showed two missing. “Marines never leave anyone behind,” says Wyatt’s aunt. They went back and, after saving the lives of others, lost their own. “When everything comes out,” says Maj. Clark Carpenter, “this will be a story about valor.”

Gunnery Sgt. Thomas Sullivan, 40
“Gunny” to his friends, Sullivan, of Hampden, Mass., was an Iraq vet and two-time Purple Heart recipient. “The only thing on his mind,” Marine Sgt. Amanda Vincent told his parents, “was if his Marines were okay.”

Lance Cpl. Skip Wells, 21
Wells, of Cobb, Ga., came from a military family. His last text read “ACTIVE SHOOTER.” Girlfriend Caroline Dove thought he was joking. Hearing no more as the gravity sank in, she texted back, “I love you.”

Staff Sgt. David Wyatt, 35
An Eagle Scout who’d saved the life of an injured swimmer at age 16, Wyatt, of Burke County, N.C., once woke his aunt on a Montana campout to watch a geyser in the moonlight. “He had a wide-eyed sense of wonder,” she says.

Sgt. Carson Holmquist, 25
Holmquist, of Polk, Wis., was a father to a 2-year-old son and worked as a recruiter. After two tours in Afghanistan, “he was finally coming home, and he was stateside,” says a friend. “How much safer can you be?”

Petty Officer Randall Smith, 26
The Rossville, Ga., father of three girls “always wanted to do something bigger,” recalls his seventh-grade teacher. “He wanted to make a difference.”

All About AMY SCHUMER

With brash humor and sharp wit, the hit TV comic proves she's a serious big-screen contender with her new blockbuster Trainwreck. How she turned losing a reality TV contest, roasting Charlie Sheen and her own bittersweet childhood into a new kind of Hollywood leading lady

Amy Schumer just had the biggest weekend of her life—$30 million big—and for once, she's not even trying to joke about it. Thanks to her movie debut in Trainwreck—the romantic comedy she wrote with more than a few nods to her own hilariously unfortunate dating experiences—the star, 34, is a newly crowned box office queen. “I am so moved that people like the movie,” she tells People, adding that she is “super grateful” to Universal, director Judd Apatow, costar Bill Hader, her longtime producer Kevin Kane and her siblings Kimberly and Jason. “Making them laugh,” she says, “is still the best feeling in the world.” With her buzzy Comedy Central show Inside Amy Schumer nominated for seven Emmys this September, the native New Yorker is marveling at her sudden takeoff. “It’s insane!” she said earlier this year. As for her humor, “It doesn’t feel like I’m going out on a ledge,” she said. “I want to be honest about everything.” —JANINE RAYFORD RUBENSTEIN

Some of Trainwreck is based on her childhood

"I was a little fearful," says Schumer of writing her dad Gordon's battle with multiple sclerosis into the comedy's story line. "It's a disease a lot of people don't know anything about but a lot of people have," says Schumer, who was a kid when he was diagnosed. "I knew I was going to write about my dad and our relationship and how [with MS] you don't know what's going to happen—and that's pretty unfair."

She gets plenty of opportunities to prove her skill with a pratfall on Inside, but she's also got dramatic chops, having studied theater at New York City's prestigious William Esper Studio drama school.

Her love life isn't quite what you think

Yes, her bedroom is a huge part of her comedy, but "I'm not very sexually active," Schumer told EW earlier this year. "Over two years I've slept with four people. Not that there'd be anything wrong if I slept with more."

Schumer plays a journalist who falls for a sports doctor (Bill Hader) in Trainwreck.

In 2007 she came in fourth on NBC's Last Comic Standing reality competition. Schumer continued to work the stand-up circuit, eventually landing a spot on the dais at Charlie Sheen's 2011 Comedy Central roast. She slayed, and a star was born.

Separated at Birth, Reunited at 25

NEITHER ANAIS BORDIER NOR SAMANTHA FUTERMAN HAD ANY IDEA SHE HAD A TWIN—UNTIL A YOUTUBE VIDEO CHANGED THEIR LIVES FOREVER

By KC BAKER

Nearly three years ago a friend sent budding fashion designer Anaïs Bordier a screenshot of a woman in a YouTube video who looked just like her. “It was crazy,” Bordier, 27, tells People. “I had never seen someone who looked so similar.” She later found a second video (a movie promo) that included the woman’s name. Intrigued, she googled her lookalike and was stunned to discover the young woman shared the same birthdate (Nov. 19, 1987); the same birthplace (Pusan, South Korea); and, like Bordier, was adopted. “I was shocked,” she says.

In February 2013 Bordier sent a life-altering Facebook message to the woman—Samantha Futerman, a Los Angeles-based actress. “At first I thought she was a creeper,” Futerman says, laughing. Neither knew she had a sister, and Futerman (above,

THE TWINS AS KIDS

let alone a twin. From that moment on, the two began chronicling their extraordinary journey together. The result? An award-winning documentary called Twinsters about how they met, how they forged a sisterhood over two continents, their trip back to their native land and the close bond they share as twins. “The entire thing has been such an expression of family, love and excitement,” says

Futerman. “It’s been two and a half years of pure fun.”

The two sisters could not have lived more different lives. Bordier, an introvert, grew up as an only child in Paris (where she still lives). Futerman, an extrovert, was raised with three brothers in Verona, N.J. Yet they clicked immediately and have since become “even more” than best friends, says Futerman. The sisters have bonded over “pajama parties where we paint our nails and fall asleep talking,” says Futerman—and have had their fair share of sisterly tugs-of-war. “I try to steal Anaïs’s nice leather jacket,” says Futerman, erupting into giggles with her sister.

The only thing they haven’t done yet is meet their birth mother. “We are hopeful that one day we will,” says Futerman. “And if the moment doesn’t come, that’s okay too.” ●

Gyllenhaal.

How I Changed My Life

HE BOXES IN SOUTHPAW, SANG IN LITTLE SHOP AND DREAMS OF BECOMING A DAD: JAKE GYLLENHAAL OPENS UP ABOUT HIS SURPRISING EVOLUTION

He got himself into the best shape of his life—as in 1,000 sit-ups twice a day—for his role as a boxer in the drama Southpaw, but for two nights in early July, Jake Gyllenhaal made for one seriously convincing nerd. As hapless florist Seymour in Little Shop of Horrors, “you tap into an innocence,” says the actor, tucking into brunch in Greenwich Village shortly after his Off-Broadway run became the most exclusive summer ticket in New York City. “I wouldn’t say nerd as much as what the musical says, which is sort of more meek and shy. To be totally honest, that’s very easy for me to tap into. As a kid, that was a big part of me: hesitant and always curious.”

The Jakeover

1. The next in Gyllenhaal's run of challenging roles, this fall's Everest depicts the 1996 disaster that killed eight climbers.
2. He lost almost 30 lbs. to play a creepy videographer in 2014's Nightcrawler. "I loved that role because the words were so brilliant," he says.
3. "I love to sing, but I was nervous!" he says of Little Shop of Horrors (with Ellen Greene).

That curiosity has helped shape an eclectic career in which the 34-year-old New Yorker has established himself as one of Hollywood's most daring leading men, from his Oscar-nominated turn in 2005's Brokeback Mountain to his work as a chilling voyeur in last year's Nightcrawler. Now he's tackling his most mature role yet, as Southpaw's grieving father. Yes, the six-pack he shows off in the film is remarkable, "but it's not just the physical transformation," says director Antoine Fuqua. "He went to places emotionally that I don't think he'd ever explored before."

For Gyllenhaal, the chance to play dad (to 13-year-old actress Oona Laurence) is something he openly yearns for off-screen. "I would love for it not to be fictional," he says, noting his close relationships with the daughters of his sister, actress Maggie Gyllenhaal, 37. "I have two nieces whom I adore and whom I'm connected to in so many powerful ways. They are deeply ingrained in the movie, and my love for them is there."

If the role shows off a more grown-up side of the actor, he's come by it honestly. Looking back on his 20s, a period in which he experienced several high-profile romances (Kirsten Dunst, Reese Witherspoon, Taylor Swift) and one big-budget flop (2010's Prince of Persia: The Sands of Time), he admits his focus wavered. "There are these extraordinarily charismatic people in the entertainment industry, and it's hugely intoxicating. But I think it can be distracting from your creativity," he says. "A few years ago I went, 'Why am I chasing something outside?' I realized that all I have is what I have inside me to express."

And that's how he found himself singing "Suddenly, Seymour" onstage with Ellen Greene, Little Shop's original Audrey. "I love his heart, and I'm shocked I had chemistry with a 34-year-old!" says Greene, 64. "The line where Audrey tells Seymour, 'I hope you have all good things in your future,' that was really me saying that to Jake."

His current career roll—the Gyllenhaissance? Jakeover?—also includes this fall's epic Everest, in which he plays climber Scott Fischer. "It was freezing, but I've never had so much fun filming," he says. Currently single (he says rumors linking him to costars Ruth Wilson and Rachel McAdams aren't true), he looks forward to having his own family someday. But when it comes to a five-year plan, "I don't have one, which is partially a change for me," he says. "I'm just listening to myself."

By Mary Green and Michelle Tauber

With his sister Maggie and parents in 2005.

Modern Family

When his parents, director Stephen Gyllenhaal and screenwriter Naomi Foner, divorced in 2009 after more than 30 years of marriage, "it allowed me to be more honest with myself," says their son. "There was a sense of two people who said, 'What is our truth?' It was painful for a lot of people in our family, but that honesty was inspiring."

Sharda Smith-Stevens, 28 STARTED WORKING OUT WITH A TRAINER

I was a junk-food person growing up. When I came home from school, my mom would check my pockets, and they'd be full of candy wrappers. She'd tell me I needed to lose weight, but I didn't have a problem being heavy. I loved being me. I knew it was getting bad when I started going to three different fast-food places just to create one meal. When I was 23, I hit 245 lbs. I went to the doctor for a checkup, and he told me I needed to do something about my weight or I'd end up just like my mom, who passed away from hypertension. I remember crying and feeling like my world was over. So I started counting calories and walking after dinner—that worked for the first 50 lbs. Everything changed when I met a trainer through church in January 2014. She told me I could eat real food like sweet potatoes and panko-crusted baked chicken. She also showed me how to use the equipment in the gym, and the weight started to fall off. Now I work out six times a week and am at 19 percent body fat. I still like to eat; I just learned to break up with the bad food.

CUT OUT JUNK FOOD

I've always been heavier—obese, really. I was over 200 lbs. in high school, and I knew I was bigger than other people, but I was okay with it. I ate a lot of fast food, and I didn't understand portions at all. Every time I got in my car I would go to the drive-through. I ate because I was bored, or tired, or sad—hardly ever because I was physically hungry. I didn't even realize I was making myself fat. It wasn't until I was living in Chile in 2011 and had the chance to climb Mount Villarrica and I couldn't make it to the top that I realized it's not just that I look different, it's that I can't do things other people my age can. That year I started exercising, and over time I learned how to nourish my body. I eat clean, minimally processed foods and always have protein in every meal. It helped me to set goals like being able to run a half marathon and master a pull-up. When I hit my goal weight in February, I started an Instagram account (@amydown100) to help me maintain. It's so rewarding to help people who have been through the same thing and see their success. It keeps me on track.

Shape-Up Tips That Really Work

Take it slowly

"Don't put pressure on yourself to do this within a short period of time, because that's how you get discouraged," says Tudie-Ann Clarke. "Think of it as a lifestyle change, not a diet."

Be prepared

"Prep your meals for the week so you always have something ready to eat," says Amy Gillespie. "I only keep healthy food at the house, so if I want to go overboard, I literally have to leave the house to do it."

Follow the 80/20 rule

"Eighty percent of the time, eat the healthy food," says Melisa Menas. "And the other 20 percent, don't be so hard on yourself. If you're on plan a majority of the time, it's all going to work out in the end."

Step away from the scale

"The scale is a great tool, but it's not an everyday tool because we all fluctuate—and that can demotivate you," says Sharda Smith-Stevens. "Also, don't be in competition with anybody. We are all made differently!"

As a kid in Jamaica, I was always well fed. Sometimes I'd have dinner at my grandma's house and go home to have another dinner. I moved to America when I was 13, and the bad habits carried over here. I was a late-night eater and would walk back and forth from the TV to the kitchen, grabbing a handful of cookies, then a large slice of coconut cake or a half-pint of ice cream. There was no such thing as "I'll save the rest for tomorrow." The turning point was a conversation with my doctor when I was 20. He told me if I didn't lose weight I'd need bariatric surgery. Two weeks later my mom saw a Jenny Craig commercial and set up an appointment for me. Within the first two weeks I was seeing results! I lost a majority of the weight within the first year, but I never put any pressure on myself to do it in a certain time frame. Going shopping is a lot more fun now, and being in a two-piece bathing suit is something I never thought I'd do. I still get a little shy, but I do love my new curves.

Melisa Menas, 35 DISCOVERED THE HUNGRY GIRL DIET

I was overweight my entire life. I vividly remember in fifth grade the kids calling me Shamu. I would cry myself to sleep every night. At my heaviest, when I was 25, I was eating easily 8,000 calories per day. I'd tried to lose weight many times before, but it wasn't until I found Lisa Lillien's Hungry Girl site in February 2010 that I was truly able to be successful. I really like to eat, and her recipes allowed me to eat large quantities of food and still stay within my calorie count. I also started working out very slowly with Zumba and 40 minutes on the elliptical. Now I'm training for a half marathon. As a flight attendant, I have to plan meals days ahead so I can cook them and put them in containers. And when I'm on a layover, my tradition is to jog to the grocery store and buy local produce, while my coworkers are usually sitting at the bar. Some of my work friends carry my recipes in their bags. Helping others get healthy makes me happier than anything you could say about how I look.

THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS AN AVERAGE DAY FOR JUSTINE EZARIK, A.K.A. iJUSTINE

Two hours before we catch up with Justine Ezarik, she uploads a video tutorial on ice-cream sandwiches. It's a pretty standard take—except for one detail: The cookie shell is raw. “I’ve been eating cookie dough my whole life,” jokes Ezarik, 31, known to her 2 million-plus YouTube fans as iJustine. “I prepared myself for it.”

It's exactly the kind of clever, relatable video that has built her an online empire over the past nine years. “I’m lucky I still enjoy this,” she tells People. “I love making people laugh.” If you’ve ever watched her vlog about her cooking fails, tech obsessions or, well, life in general, you know she succeeds.

In a time when stardom feels a click away, the Internet is saturated with people taking cues from Ezarik (who also has a bestselling book, I, Justine: An Analog Memoir). “It was really an accident,” she says of picking a career that puts her life in the spotlight. “I’m the same person as iJustine, but there’s stuff I don’t share.”

That means keeping her friends, family and love interests away from the Web when those people aren’t comfortable with the idea of Internet fame. “You tell [your fans] as much as you’re comfortable with,” she says. “Sometimes people don’t realize we’re not sharing everything. Only pieces.”

Still, being a YouTube star (she’s scheduled to appear at the upcoming VidCon in Anaheim, Calif.) is full-time work. “I hate putting makeup on,” she says, joking that if her hair is brushed and she’s not in sweatpants, she’s ready to make content. “I try to shoot [every day],” she says before adding, “There is no average day.” —ALISON SCHWARTZ

Crazy Happy Family

EXES GEORGE HAMILTON AND ALANA STEWART AND THEIR YOURS-MINE-AND-OURS KIDS OPEN UP ABOUT THEIR NEW REALITY SHOW BY AILI NAHAS

It's been four decades since bronzed Hollywood legend George Hamilton, 75, and former model Alana Stewart, 70, ended their four-year marriage. But the parents of Ashley Hamilton, 40, have maintained a friendship through break-ups, heartache and three more children between them (Stewart has Kimberly, 35, and Sean, 34, with ex-husband Rod Stewart; Hamilton has George ("GT") Hamilton Jr., 15, with ex Kimberly Blackford). Now the blended family is starring on an E! reality series, Stewarts & Hamiltons, premiering on July 26, in which they embrace their imperfections and unconventional roots. "We're not some glitzy Hollywood family that's never dealt with difficulties," says Alana (who's now single, as is George). "We've gone through a lot of ups and downs as a family. But we also have a lot of laughs and a lot of fun."

Be honest. Any reservations about doing a reality series?

GEORGE: Reality has gotten a bad rap. We all have things we're trying to pro-

NOTICE OF PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

If You Bought Fresh Potatoes Between October 14, 2004 and April 10, 2015 From a Retailer in Arizona, California, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, or Wisconsin, a Class Action Lawsuit May Affect Your Rights.

A Settlement has been reached in In re Fresh and Process Potatoes Antitrust Litigation, MDL No. 2186, Case No. 4:10-MD-2186-BLW, a class action pending in the United States District Court for the District of Idaho. The lawsuit claims that Defendants and their co-conspirators formed a cartel with the goal of raising prices in violation of the antitrust laws. As a result, buyers of fresh potatoes at retail stores may have paid more than was necessary. Defendants deny that they acted unlawfully or engaged in any wrongdoing and settled the claims against them in exchange for (i) injunctive relief ending some of Defendants' business practices designed to restrict the supply of Fresh Potatoes; and (ii) a cash payment of $5,500,000 into a Settlement Fund. Class members are those who purchased Fresh Potatoes between October 14, 2004 and April 10, 2015 from a retailer in Arizona, California, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, or Wisconsin.

The Court will hold a public Fairness Hearing on December 3, 2015 at 3:30 p.m. to determine whether the Settlement is fair, reasonable, and adequate. The Court also will consider whether to award attorneys' fees and expenses to Class Counsel and service awards to the Class Representatives for their work on the case. The Court will consider any objections at the Fairness Hearing. Those wishing to appear and speak at the Fairness Hearing must submit in writing a Notice of Intent to Appear postmarked no later than October 16, 2015.

The injunctive relief provided in the Settlement commenced on April 10, 2015, but is contingent upon final approval. Class members seeking to receive a payment must submit a Claim Form no later than October 16, 2015. You may obtain a Claim Form at www.PotatoesAntitrustSettlement.com. If you are a Class member but do not file a Claim Form, you will still be bound by the releases set forth in the Settlement Agreement if the Court enters an order finally approving the Settlement and appeals, if any, of the Court's final approval of the Settlement are resolved in Plaintiffs' favor. Objections and requests to be excluded from the Settlement must be submitted to the Claims Administrator postmarked no later than October 16, 2015 and made in accordance with the instructions set forth in the long-form Settlement Notice. The Settlement Agreement, long-form Settlement Notice, Claim Form, and other important case documents are available on the Settlement website at www.PotatoesAntitrustSettlement.com.

fect, but I'm very comfortable.

SEAN: There was no holding back for me. I'm the comic relief! You've got to go out there and be yourself and open and honest and real.

ALANA: From the time Sean could talk, he was completely unfiltered. He's never changed.

KIMBERLY: We're crazy in a fun way, not crazy in a Jerry Springer way. We have fun together, and it shows.

What was it like growing up with such well-known parents?

KIMBERLY: My dad [Rod Stewart] was a bit more low-key; my mom was friends with all the famous people. It was really cool because she had cool artists over. Elton, Ryan O'Neal, Farrah, John McEnroe.

ASHLEY: Should we go down the list? Cher ... Bob Dylan came over and had a hood over his head. I thought he was a rapper.

ALANA: You're making it sound like I had these people over for dinner every night! I had occasional parties.

Did the Hollywood scene ever get out of control?

ASHLEY: I have a few ex-wives. [He married Shannen Doherty in 1993 after knowing her for two weeks; she filed for divorce after five months; his three-month marriage to Angie Everhart ended in 1997.] I learned, go on a second date! And [being a fixture on the Hollywood scene] overshadowed my work. I ended up taking some time off, a little sabbatical.

ALANA: Kimberly made good grades, she always did well in school. Then I found that she was sneaking out and driving to clubs at 16.

SEAN: My mom called the club!

ALANA: I said, "I'm going to report you to the police if you don't stop letting these underage kids in." The kids all hated me for that.

KIMBERLY: A week later I called my dad and said, "Mom embarrassed me," so he took me in there and told the owners, "Let her come in when she wants to come in."

ALANA: That's terrible! I was trying to keep them grounded. I grew up in a little town in Texas, and I wanted my kids to have some values.

George's style and his reputation as a ladies' man are well documented. What's he like as a dad?

GT: I've learned a sense of style from Dad. He's very conservative in the way he dresses. I started paying attention to people from his era, the late 1950s to mid-'60s. And he knows women. He's taught me things that have helped boost my confidence.

ASHLEY: He would tell me, "If you want to pick up women, sit by the women's bathroom."

I'm like, "Dad, but I'm 7!"

GEORGE: All roads lead to Rome. In or out of the ladies' room, that's the best time to meet women.

ALANA: That sounds like a stalker! I've never heard you say that.

GEORGE: Didn't I meet you at a ladies' room?

ALANA: No, that must have been a different wife!

KIMBERLY: George sleeps in silk pajamas. He presses them himself, which is so impressive.

SEAN: I remember when I was 13 and I was staying with George in L.A. He had some rules: In the morning we had to be dressed, bed made. To make him proud, I didn't sleep under the sheets but on top of them with my clothes on!

Ashley and Sean, you've both admitted to struggles with drugs and alcohol. How does family help you all get through the tough times?

SEAN: I'm a reformed bad boy. I think a lot of people struggle. A lot of it, I was hanging out with the wrong crowd. I got a lot of support from my family, and I learned a lot from it. I'm not angry at myself for going through what I went through.

ASHLEY: I've seen how harsh this town can be. And I had some really hard, dark times. But my dad never gave up on me. He always said, "You'll get a second chance." And now I do have a second chance.

ALANA: We all have our stuff. The show has actually been very healing for us as a family. I think it's brought us a lot closer.

GEORGE: It's like therapy. It's giving us a chance to get into things we never would have gotten into.

We need to discuss George's famous tan. When did it start?

GEORGE: In prep school I was the comedian, but I didn't have a girlfriend. Then I got an incredible tan, and the next party I was hit on by three girls; I never took the chance of losing the tan after that.

ALANA: I've only seen him pale once, when he was sick with hepatitis and couldn't go outside. He turned a strange color of yellow.

KIMBERLY: He has a reflector, a mirror that opens up that he puts under his chin. He built it himself!

GEORGE: I get energy from the sun. I feel it. And for a man who's been in the sun all my life, my skin is pretty soft. I should be beef jerky! ●

MORTGAGE LENDER, PHILANTHROPIST

Glenn Stearns

GROWING UP IN A TOUGH, crime-ridden neighborhood outside Washington, D.C., Glenn Stearns seemed destined to go nowhere fast. His parents were alcoholics who struggled to make ends meet, he flunked fourth grade because of dyslexia, and at age 14, he became a father. But Stearns, 51, is now one of the nation's top home-mortgage lenders, with a net worth of more than $500 million, and is dedicated to mentoring kids who come from harsh backgrounds: "I want kids who grew up like me to be victors instead of victims."

A Rough Beginning

His father worked as a printer and his mother had a job cleaning houses, but money was tight when Stearns was growing up in Silver Spring, Md. The family apartment had bars on the windows, and Stearns and his little sister were not allowed to play outside at night because "it was too dangerous," he says. Despite his parents' alcoholism, he says, his father was "big on integrity, to have your word mean something. I learned that from him."

A Father at 14

Stearns was just 14 when his then 17-year-old girlfriend became pregnant. When she decided to keep the baby, he got a job outside school to help support his daughter, and his mom quit working to help care for the baby during the day. It was tough, he says, but the struggles made him stronger. "Sometimes what seems like the worst thing in your life," he says, "turns out to be the best thing."

Determined to Succeed

Stearns pushed through high school and became the first person in his family to graduate from college, earning an economics degree from Towson University, but it was a chance road trip to California that changed his life: "I saw this beautiful mansion and asked the guy in the front yard what he did for a living. He laughed and said, 'I'm just the gardener, but I think the owner is in real estate.'" Ten months later, after sleeping on friends' floors and couches to save cash, he and a pal opened their own mortgage company. This year Stearns Home Loans is expected to provide $27 billion in loans.

The Power of Mentors

Stearns, now a married father of six (with two grandkids), inspires teens to realize their potential through college scholarships and one-on-one mentoring. "These kids," he says, "are proof that dreams are still alive."

—JOHNNY DODD

ALL SMILES

Despite the tough circumstances, "I was a really happy kid," recalls Stearns (in front of the family's apartment).

1970

BIG WISH

"I didn't realize the bad things going on around me," says Stearns (on his 7th birthday). "I had dreams of being a truck driver."

1986

YOUNG DAD

Teased in school because he'd become a father, "I learned not to take that personally," says Stearns (with daughter Charlene, now 36). "We've got a solid relationship."

MAKING IT COUNT

Stearns works with kids through his own foundation and the Horatio Alger Association. "These kids are inspiring," he says. "They are creating the American dream and living it."

EVEN THOUGH NIKKI REED has eight other animals—four dogs, two cats and two horses—her newest rescue cat, Sohalia, “rules the house. She’s the most confident cat in the world,” says the actress, 27, who has joined the cast of Sleepy Hollow. “We have 350 lbs. of dog in the house, and Sohalia is not scared of anything!” Reed was inspired to rescue animals by her mother, who fostered “so many pets growing up, I couldn’t even name them all if I tried.” Now she’s continuing that tradition with her new husband, Ian Somerhalder, who shares the same affinity. “I don’t think that either of us could ever be with somebody who didn’t love animals!” —MARIAH HAAS

Moore, 45, tells People. "Now he is like Jabba the Hutt." After a pal brought Shug over to Moore's Los Angeles house seven years ago, the Criminal Minds actor quickly realized he'd found his canine soulmate: "I put him on the pool table, and he chased the balls and started making this squeaky noise. It was just too cute." Moe joined the family soon afterward to help keep Shug company. "They know I'm Daddy," says Moore. "And they really are my little homies." —MIA McNIECE

It was a different story when she adopted her Chihuahua-pug mix Bean, 9. “I only intended to foster her,” she says, “but we fell in love. I never had that kind of pure devotion before. She has taught me the value of unconditional love, and I definitely try to bring that into my human relationships.” Young is grateful that her pets “are there through the good times and bad times. WHEN KAT GRAHAM RESCUED her dogs—Izzy, a miniature pinscher, was found by a production assistant on the set of her 2011 movie Honey 2, and Pete, a Jack Russell-golden retriever mix, was discovered on the street in South Central L.A.—she felt an immediate connection. “They’re just so beautiful and so sweet,” says the Vampire Diaries star, 28. “We just had this instant chemistry.” The actress sees elements of her personality in each of them—“Pete is a tomboy; I’m a bit of a tomboy. ## Pan-Roasted Asparagus with Fried Egg

THE CHEF AND
FOOD NETWORK STAR
JUDGE SHARES
A 'GREAT FOR ANY OCCASION' DISH

- 6 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil,
divided
- ½ cup panko bread crumbs
- 1 tsp. grated lemon zest
- ¼ tsp. red pepper flakes
- ½ tsp. plus ⅛ tsp. kosher salt,
divided
- ½ cup chopped
flat-leaf parsley
- 2 tbsp. grated Parmesan
- 1 lb. thin asparagus, trimmed
- 4 large eggs

1. Heat a large skillet over medium heat. Add 2 tbsp. olive oil and bread crumbs, and toast, stirring often, until golden brown. Place the mixture in a small bowl and add the lemon zest, red pepper flakes and ⅛ tsp. salt. Stir well, then let cool to room temperature. Stir in parsley and Parmesan, and set aside.

2. Wipe out the pan, then add 2 tbsp. olive oil and heat over medium-high heat. Add the asparagus and ¼ tsp. salt. Cook for 4 to 5 minutes, flipping the spears often, until they are bright green, cooked through and slightly browned. Remove to 4 serving plates.

3. To the same pan, add the remaining 1 tbsp. olive oil. Crack 2 eggs into the pan, season with salt, and reduce the heat slightly. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes or until the edges are light brown and crispy and the whites are just set; the yolk should still be runny. Using a spatula, slide the eggs on top of 2 servings of asparagus. Repeat with the remaining 2 eggs. Sprinkle with the panko mixture and a drizzle of olive oil, if desired.

THE PARTNERS BEHIND N.Y.C.'S BIG GAY ICE CREAM AND A NEW COOKBOOK OF THE SAME NAME OFFER A SWEET SUNDAE TOPPER—WITH A KICK!

BRYAN PETROFF & DOUGLAS QUINT

- 3 cups sugar
- 1½ cups whole milk
- 2 cinnamon sticks
- 6 tbsp. unsalted butter
- ½ cup plus 1 tbsp. unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1½ tsp. sea salt
- 1 tsp. chipotle chili powder
- ½ tsp. cayenne pepper
- 3 oz. semisweet chocolate
- 1½ tsp. vanilla extract

1. Combine sugar, milk, cinnamon sticks and butter in a large saucepan, and whisk vigorously over medium heat for 5 minutes or until completely smooth and sugar is dissolved.

2. Add the cocoa powder, salt and next 4 ingredients, and stir until chocolate is melted and incorporated; scraping the sides and bottom of the pan as necessary to avoid burning the chocolate. The sauce will be silky and shiny when ready. Discard cinnamon sticks.

3. Taste and adjust seasoning as desired. Let cool for 10 minutes. Serve over ice cream or store in an airtight container in the fridge for up to 2 weeks.

Makes: 1 qt. for 4 to 6 sundaes

Prep time: 5 minutes, plus cooling

Cook time: 15 minutes

'It's deceptively spicy. You don't taste the heat in the first bite; you get it in the second,' says Petroff. 'To scale it back, leave out the chipotle and cayenne'

I was in a hostile negotiation with my 4-year-old [Ava] this morning about the terms of my surrender to wake up. I lost that battle, so she told me all about her dreams. I'm a psychotherapist at 5 a.m.

Last time I was embarrassed

In Paris, a guy comes up and goes, "Hey! My son thinks you're Black Jack." I said, "The card game?" He goes, "No, the actor." "So, not only are you calling me Jack Black, but you don't have the courtesy to correctly name me after another dark-haired, overweight actor? That's really nice."

Last time I cried

I was watching Toy Story 3 with my daughter and I literally started sobbing. I've seen it so many times, but it just breaks the heart. She just looked at me like, "What's wrong with you?"

Last thing I lost

I lost my wedding ring [from wife Ida Darvish] on the set of The Wedding Ringer. I never found it. I even took the [prop] ring; it looked similar enough. Still not living that one down, by the way.
